The latest rules from the government - in England

On July 19th all Covid legal restrictions in England ended, including social distancing. There are no limits on people attending events. But the government says people should proceed with 'extreme caution' and is recommending and expecting that the use of face coverings should continue on public transport and in 'enclosed spaces'.

Self isolation: Since 16th August, people who've had both their jabs will no longer have to self-isolate after close contact with someone who tests positive. If contacted, you are advised to take a PCR test as soon as possible. As long as that is negative, and you don't develop symptoms, you won't need to take any further action. If positive you must self-isolate for 10 days.

Holidays abroad: revised traffic light system announced on 4th August. Arrivals from red list countries must quarantine in govt hotels. Fully vaccinated people returning to England from amber-list countries will no longer be required to self-isolate. All travellers will still need to take a Covid test pre-departure and a PCR test on the second day after they arrive in the UK.
